P2JW083000-6-A00100-16DDF61078D

THE WALL STREET JOURNAL.

DOW JONES | News Corp  TUESDAY, MARCH 24, 2026 ~ VOL. CCLXXXVII NO. 68 WSJ.com ★★★★ $5.00

DJIA 46208.47 ▲ 631.00 1.38% NASDAQ 21946.76 ▲ 1.4% STOXX 600 576.78 ▲ 0.6% 10-YR. TREAS. ▲ 14/32, yield 4.334% OIL $88.13 ▼ $10.10 GOLD $4,404.10 ▼ $166.30 EURO $1.1615 YEN 158.44

What's News

Business & Finance

◆ Major U.S. stock indexes surged on news of a postponement of U.S. strikes on Iranian power plants, with the S&P 500 rising 1.1% and the Dow and Nasdaq both advancing 1.4%. Bonds rallied. A1

◆ Rising prices of services, from haircuts to healthcare, are taking center stage in the Fed's fight against inflation. A1

◆ OpenAI hired Dave Dugan, a former top advertising executive at Meta Platforms, to lead its ad sales. B1

◆ Mark Zuckerberg is building a personal artificial-intelligence agent to help him do his job as Meta Platforms' chief executive. B1

◆ Danone agreed to buy nutrition startup Huel for about $1.2 billion, seeking to tap growing demand for meal-replacement shakes. B3

◆ Victory Capital dismissed reports that major clients are uneasy with its bid for Janus Henderson, calling the claims misleading. B3

◆ Hyundai is working to fix tens of thousands of three-row SUVs after receiving reports of occupants becoming trapped by powered rear seats. B3

◆ Berkshire Hathaway plans to acquire a 2.5% stake in Japanese insurer Tokio Marine for $1.8 billion as part of a strategic partnership. B3

◆ Nvidia and Emerald AI said they would work with power producers to develop a new class of artificial-intelligence factory. B4

◆ Intuit accelerated its stock-buyback program and ended scheduled stock sales by senior managers to help shore up its share price. B4

Worldwide

◆ Trump said the U.S. military would postpone strikes on Iranian power plants and energy infrastructure for five days following "productive" talks between Washington and Tehran, contradicting Iran's foreign ministry, which said there were no direct talks. A1, A6, A8

◆ Senators were closing in on a deal to fund the Department of Homeland Security except for ICE, signaling a possible breakthrough after a standoff that has lasted more than a month. A1

◆ ICE agents were deployed to several U.S. airports to help manage long security lines amid the lapse in funding for the Department of Homeland Security. A3

◆ Sen. Markwayne Mullin won confirmation to replace Kristi Noem as homeland security secretary. A4

◆ The Supreme Court appeared inclined to block states from counting mailed ballots that are postmarked by Election Day but arrive a few days afterward. A4

◆ The Pentagon introduced new restrictions on press access, after a federal judge struck down earlier limits as unconstitutional. A4

◆ An experimental Lyme disease vaccine from Pfizer and Valneva didn't conclusively succeed in a large study. A3

◆ A military transport aircraft carrying Colombian troops crashed in the south of the country, killing dozens. A9

◆ Died: David Simon, 64, dealmaking mall investor. B1 ... Leo Radvinsky, 43, OnlyFans owner. B4

CONTENTS

Arts in Review	A12	Markets Digest	B8
Business & Finance	B2,6	Opinion	A13-15
Business News	B3	Personal Journal	A10-11
Crossword	A12	Sports	A16
Finance	B11	Technology	B4
Heard on Street	B11	U.S. News	A2-4
		World News	A6,8-9

© 2026 Dow Jones & Company, Inc. All Rights Reserved

Pilots Killed as Plane Rams Firetruck at LaGuardia

SETH WENIG/ASSOCIATED PRESS

TARMAC TRAGEDY: An Air Canada Express jetliner struck a firetruck on a runway at New York City's LaGuardia Airport late Sunday, killing two pilots and injuring 41 people. The airport, which has had a shortage of air-control staff, reopened Monday. A3

President Backs Off On Threat To Iranian Energy

Trump says talks to end war are making progress, but Tehran expresses skepticism

President Trump said on Monday the U.S. military would postpone strikes on Iranian power plants and energy infrastructure for five days following "productive" talks between Washington and Tehran.

By Alex Leary, Summer Said and Benoit Faucon

In a Truth Social post written in all caps, Trump wrote that the U.S. and Iran had "very good and productive conversations regarding a complete and total resolution of our hostilities in the Middle East." Trump wrote that based on those discussions, which he expected would continue this week, he had asked the Pentagon to hold off on the energy-related strikes that he had threatened "subject to the success of the ongoing meetings and discussions."

Iranian and Arab officials expressed skepticism about the chances of success for Trump's diplomatic push, saying it appeared to be an attempt to damp oil prices, which fell sharply after the president said there was progress in the talks.

"Fearing a response from Iran, Trump backed down from his 48-hour ultimatum," Iranian state broadcaster IRIB said.

Iran's Foreign Ministry earlier denied talks with the U.S., IRIB reported. "Yes, there are initiatives from regional countries to reduce tensions, and our response to all of them is clear: We are not the party

Please turn to page A8

Stocks Were Headed for a Rout, Then Trump Hit Social Media

Investors welcomed efforts to end a war that has driven up energy prices

By Sam Goldfarb

The sun was rising early Monday on another bleak day for markets. Oil prices were climbing. Stock futures were sliding. A rout in government bonds was showing no signs of abating. Then President Trump took to social media.

A little after 7 a.m. ET, he posted that the U.S. military would postpone strikes on Iranian power plants. The reason: "productive conversations regarding a complete and total resolution of our hostilities."

The reversal was immediate and stark. Stock futures surged into the green, swinging a decline of almost 1% into a climb briefly exceeding 2.5%. Oil futures dropped precipitously, with Brent, the global gauge, falling from above $112 a barrel to below $100 in seconds. Bonds rallied.

Even after Iran denied talks, the tone was set. Investors cheered the efforts to end a war that has sparked the largest oil shock on record, while threatening to fuel inflation and slow global growth. The Dow Jones Industrial Average and S&P 500 posted their biggest one-day gains since early February, with the Dow industrials rising 1.4% and the S&P advancing 1.1%. The Nasdaq composite added 1.4%.

Brent ended the session down 11%, just below $100 a barrel, its lowest level since March 11.

"A little bit of light, or a little bit of good news, can go a long way," said Keith Lerner, chief investment officer at Truist Advisory Services. "Before this weekend, a lot of people were thinking about worst-

Please turn to page A6

War in Iran Endangers Political Prisoners

U.S.-Israeli airstrikes have damaged complexes used to hold detainees

By Joe Parkinson, Drew Hinshaw and Belle Cushing

Lindsay Foreman was hunched over the landline in Ward 7 of Tehran's Evin prison, telling her son Joe that the U.S.-Israeli bombing campaign had started. Warplanes had been circling above the Iranian capital all morning and the rumble of explosions had sent prisoners scurrying beneath their bunks.

"It's begun," said the British mother of two, arrested a year ago on a motorcycle trip with her husband for espionage charges she denies.

Then a bomb blast ripped through the windows of her prison, home to dissidents, a Nobel Prize winner and at least three Americans Iran holds hostage as bargaining chips.

"S—, s—.... What was that?" Lindsay asked, screams echoing in the gray-tiled hallway. The line cut.

In another corner of the prison, Ahmadreza Djalali, an Iranian-Swedish doctor, was calling his wife. The Harvard fellow was a scholar on treating disaster zone victims, but had been sentenced to

Please turn to page A9

Impact Spreads

◆ Tehran's negotiator strikes defiant tone A6
◆ AI and voice-overs stand in for leader A6
◆ The back-channel diplomacy behind Trump's U-turn A8
◆ Europe quietly plays key role in war A8

Rising Service Costs Drive U.S. Inflation

By Konrad Putzier

Camp Bow Wow in downtown Nashville, a dog daycare, in January raised its daily rate to $36 from $33, a 9% increase. Instead of losing customers, though, the Nashville location of Camp Bow Wow recently broke its daily record by hosting 206 dogs.

"I don't think anybody even complained" about the prices, said owner Steve Lassiter.

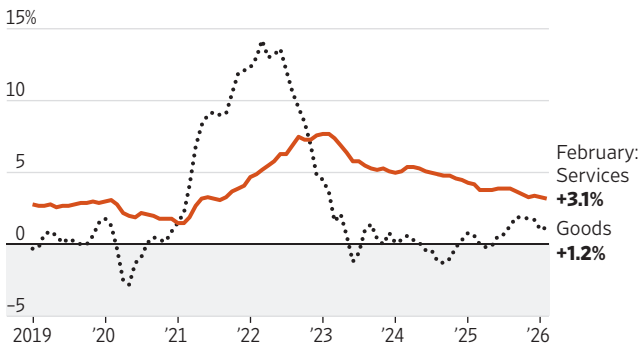
Robust spending is driving up prices of services from haircuts to healthcare, a dynamic that is now taking center stage in the Federal Reserve's fight against inflation.

In the past year, the spotlight has been on the rising price of goods during a year of on-again off-again tariffs, and more recently on the rising price of gasoline because of the U.S. and Israel's war with Iran. Yet the rising price of services is a big part of why the inflation rate has stayed above the Fed's 2% target.

Economists said prices of services keep rising because

Please turn to page A2

Consumer-price index for goods and services, change from a year earlier



Note: Data unavailable for Oct. 2025 due to lapse in appropriations
Source: Labor Department

Senators Talk Deal To Fund DHS, TSA

WASHINGTON—Senators said they were closing in on a deal to fund the Department of Homeland Security except for the agency that carries out immigrant arrests and deportations, signaling a possible breakthrough after a more than monthlong standoff.

By Lindsay Wise, Siobhan Hughes and Natalie Andrews

"Both sides are talking in a serious way," said Senate Minority Leader Chuck Schumer (D., N.Y.) as he left the Capitol Monday night.

The potential breakthrough came after a meeting at the White House between President Trump and a group of GOP senators, including Sen. Katie Britt (R., Ala.). "It went really well," Britt said afterward. Asked if they had a solution, she said, "We do." She declined to share details.

Pressure has been growing on lawmakers to resolve the impasse, which was sparked last month by Democrats' demands for more restrictions on immigration enforcement agents. Republicans have a

Please turn to page A3

◆ ICE deploys at airports amid long TSA lines..... A3

Ads on the Fridge? Some Owners Say That's Not Cool

* * *

Samsung ushers in controversial new era of marketing in the kitchen

By Jiyoung Sohn

Walking into his kitchen, Tim Yoder recoiled at a message on his refrigerator door: "Shop Samsung water filters."

Yoder, a supply-chain manager in Chicago, owns a Samsung Electronics Family Hub fridge. He paid $1,400 for an appliance that came with a 32-inch screen on the door that allows him to control other Samsung gadgets, pull up recipes or stream music.

But since last fall, it's been intermittently serving up ads, part of a pilot program being tested on some of Samsung's smart fridges sold in the U.S. The response? Not warm.

"I guess this is another place for somebody to shove an ad in your face," said the 47-year-old Yoder, recalling the first time he noticed one.

A fridge too far

Americans have learned to live with ads on smartphones and other devices as a necessary trade-off of connectivity. They've also gotten used to growing intrusions in the physical world, where everything from bathroom stalls to taxicab seats have become fair game for marketers. But the kitchen remained

Please turn to page A11

INSIDE

BUSINESS & FINANCE
Tim Higgins: This time, the hype around self-driving cars feels real. B1

ISTOCK

PERSONAL JOURNAL
The hack that turns Trump accounts for children into tax-free retirement savings. A11